WORRIES[®]
BY CLINTON ANDERSON

2024 CALENDAR

G'day, Mate -

Like many of you, I wasn't born into a family of horsemen, but the first time I met a horse, I was hooked. I still remember that day. My grandmother had gotten a Thoroughbred mare named Lee. Back then, my family and I knew absolutely nothing about horses, but we did our best to learn and I worked hard at bettering my skill set. When I was a teenager, I found my way to Gordon McKinlay and my lifelong journey of learning horsemanship took off. There have been plenty of successes and challenges along the way, but one thing that has stayed true is knowledge is power. The more knowledge you have, the better able you are to fix issues with yourself and your horse. Always remember: Frustration begins where knowledge ends. If you're starting out or struggling with your horsemanship, don't worry. We've all been there. Stay the course, keep adding to your knowledge and you'll become the horseman you dream of being.

Cheers,
